

AILG - NILGA Collaboration 2025 – 2028

Background

For over two decades, the Association for Irish Local Government and the Northern Ireland Local Government Association have worked together to foster a spirit of cooperation, coordination and collaboration. In recent years, initiatives have included:

- Joint meetings on cross-border collaboration in practice, strengthening the role of local government, local government finances, abuse & intimidation of councillors, planning and tourism
- Sharing of best practice, experience & expertise including on councillor safety, terms & conditions, tourism, economic development & Brexit implications
- Joint statement on civility in public life issued in September 2023
- Representation to the Seanad on the future of local democracy
- Joint bid to Shared Island fund in 2024, culminating in a successful conference in November 2024
- Attendance and presentations at respective conferences

Through working collaboratively, sharing best practice and knowledge, both organisations have demonstrated a stronger collective voice when engaging with national or regional governments and a greater ability to shape policy decisions and secure funding for local government initiatives. Learning and development opportunities for members of both Associations, have enabled capacity building at elected member level in order to respond to emerging challenges.

The Associations are conscious of the wide range of organisations engaged in cross-border work at local government level, to include the cross-border implementation bodies established under the Good Friday Agreement, cross border groups (East Border Region, Irish Central Area Border Network, North West Strategic Growth Partnership, cross-council work on Peace Plus and other funding initiatives (including Belfast-Dublin Economic Corridor) and emergency planning response measures.

AILG and NILGA will support the work of those organisations and initiatives, however it does not seek to replicate or duplicate their work. Instead, the Associations will focus on strengthening political relationships, building capacity of elected members, increasing collaboration on shared priorities and increasing the level of engagement of political representatives in cross-border dialogues.

Opportunity

Both Associations are committed to formalising an agreement to strengthen their collaboration over the coming three years and beyond, regardless of leadership changes. To take forward this work and establish a durable foundation for collaboration through relationship building, a Memorandum of Collaboration will outline shared goals, responsibilities and decision-making processes.

A joint Steering Group will be formed with representatives from both Associations to guide a programme of work. The Steering Group will meet twice per year to identify shared challenges, priorities, and opportunities for collaboration. This will include:

- Regular meetings of the leadership of both Associations
- Develop joint policy papers and advocacy campaigns to influence national and regional governments
- Proactively seeking opportunities to share & learn from each other, including by organising joint workshops and webinars on key policy areas.
- Seeking strategic opportunities for impactful collaboration, including with external partners
- Developing the evidence base for funding opportunities in shared priority areas
- Launching a small-scale joint project (e.g., digital transformation or community engagement initiative)

A three-year strategic plan is proposed to guide our work from June 2025 - May 2028, allowing the Associations to prioritise and focus their efforts on areas of interest that are not currently addressed by the Associations.

In Year 1, the partnership will focus Violence Against Women and Girls due to the shared challenges and opportunities that exist on both sides of the border. By working together, we can leverage collective expertise, resources, and networks to create a more comprehensive and effective response to this pervasive issue. Joint initiatives can facilitate the sharing of best practices, enhance the capacity of local authorities, and ensure a coordinated approach to policy development and implementation. Collectively we can strengthen the impact of individual efforts and develop a powerful message of commitment to ending violence against women and girls.

In order to build on early successes and take the collaboration to a new level, scaling and innovation will be the key aims of the partnership in Year 2. Engagement opportunities will be increased and made available to a wider cohort of councillors through the delivery of a blended approach to policy discussions, both in person and online and through the use of innovation labs & hackathons. The focus will be on developing concise materials for use by councillors to signpost residents to wellbeing support, and to develop resources for councillors' own wellbeing. Successful models and tools will be shared and replicated / localised if required and joint tools will be developed to support collaboration. We aim to leverage technology by collaborating with strategic partners and co-create new value through our collaboration.

In Year 3, as the partnership becomes more impactful and demonstrates results, we will address long-term sustainability by exploring opportunities for collaboration with local government associations in the UK. A theme for a high-profile summit in Year 3 will be agreed with the partners, which will also allow us to remain agile and respond to emerging challenges. The Associations will investigate how income streams could be diversified to support this work.

An overview of the three-year plan is presented overleaf.
